

Sir Turi Carroll Centennial Scholarship

This scholarship recognises and celebrates the life of Sir Turi Carroll and his many achievements in the field of Māori development, and recognises the role the university had in assisting Sir Turi to do that.

Alfred (Turi) Thomas Carroll was born in Wairoa, Hawkes Bay, in 1890 of Ngati Kahungunu and Irish descent and was the nephew of Eastern Māori Member of Parliament Sir James Carroll. Sir Turi was educated at Wanganui Collegiate and Te Aute College before travelling to the South Island to study at the Canterbury Agricultural College (now Lincoln University).

Sir Turi represented Canterbury Agricultural College at rugby and cricket and was also a Canterbury provincial rugby representative. After completing his Diploma of Agriculture he took over management of the 2200 acre family farm back in Wairoa. Following overseas service in World War I, he and his brother Joseph set about restoring Huramua Station.

Huramua Station became a model property of 1260 acres of easy hills, and 900 acres of river flats, carrying (1940) 4000 sheep, 211 milking cows, 250 beef cattle, 220 pigs and various crops. Sir Turi was elected to Wairoa County Council in 1926 and went on to become chairman in 1938. He served on many other local bodies and community organisations. He worked with Sir Apirana Ngata on farming schemes for Māori and served on the Kahungunu Māori Council.

In 1940 Lincoln University awarded Sir Turi Carroll the prestigious Bledisloe Medal for his immense contribution to raising the standard of farming in the Wairoa area. His work for Māori continued in the following decades, which was acknowledged with the OBE in 1952 and a knighthood in 1962.
